WHAT THE MINERS BUY.

Green Things Kept in the General Store in the Coke Regions.

Every merchant is guided more or less in the purchase of his supplies by the Cardinal Fareirs of his customers, but, according the Feneral stores in the coke regions as the Feneral stores in the coke regions of personal stores in the coke regions of these stores are all controlled by the owners of the mines, and it is alleged that some of them force them men to buy from them exclusively. The profits of these stores are undeadly large, sithough the prices at some of them, at least, are lower than they are at the usual country stores.

The unique features of the wares carried in these stores are the enormous feather-beds, Polish and Hungarian headdresses, heavy boots for the women as well as the men, and all sorts of gaudy shawls and dress stuffs. Among the special provisions these stores supply are highly-seasoned sausages and hams, such are found in the Hungarian and Polish quarters of the town. The Poles are much more extravagant than the Huns, and buy much better and higher-priced goods. The Huns buy the cheapest kinds of meat, of which they make their goliashes. They do not buy very much of anything in the way of provisions, however, relying largely upon their gardens for vegetables, and occasionally killing one of their ducks or geese.

The Poles, on the contrary, rely very little upon their own efforts, although they also have good gardens, but purchase the best foods that the stores have. Very few of the purchasers pay cash. Instead, they secure from their forement tickets for various amounts. These are presented at the stores in payment for

BUXTON'S STRANGE CRIME.

"I sometimes fear," said the worrying woman, "that my poor husband was buried alive."

Let Him Hung Her. (Vironua, Wis., Letter in Chicago Inter

Ocenza) It is doubtful if the annals of crime furnish a parallel to the murder that has just been committed in this vicinity. Last Tuesday Mary Jones was found hanging in her house near this city. At first it was thought to be a case of suicide, but the appearance of things in the case, but the appearance of the same in the rope was tied, and a number of circumstances connected with the case led the Coroner's jury to the belief that there had been foul play, and they returned a verdict that the woman came to her death at the hands of parties unknown.

Sheriff A. Silbaugh was strongly of the been foul play, and they returned a verdict that the woman came to her death at the hands of parties unknown. Sheriff A. Silbaugh was strongly of the opinion that it was murder, and not suicide. Letters found among the dead woman's effects showed that an intimacy had existed between her and Samue-Buxton, a married man, in that vicinity. Solificient evidence was found to warrant the arrest of Buxton, and he was lodged in fail Saturday evening. The Sheriff labored with the prisoner until after 12 o'clock Saturday night, and inally obtained a confession.

Buxton admitted that he obtained control of the woman by making her believe that he possessed powers of witchcraft, and also through promises that he would marry her as soon as he got rid of his wife. He made the woman believe that if she should hang herself until she was apparently dead the spirit would produce the same effect on his wife, with the exception that it would kill his wife, while it would have practically no effect on his victim. As she was anxious to have Mrs. Buxton dead, so that they could be married, she readily consented to this means of killing Mrs. Buxton.

Three weeks ago, Buxton said, he called at the house of the Jones woman for the purpose of carrying out this plan. A rope was tied to the rafter and around the woman's neck. Then his heart failed him and he let her down and left the house. He returned again Sunday afternoon and told the woman killed his wife, and that if they would try it again and he would let her hang longer it would be sure to kill his wife. The woman consented to the trial.

The pattern is not worked in any way, but the satin ground is entirely covered with durning in black silk. Large reversed points or half-diamonds are set together and left bare like the figures all round the edge of the cushion, which has no other finish except a silk cord covering the seam. The figures, which are from three to five inches high, are arranged as if crossing the cushion processionally. The darning, although closely done, does not prevent a gleam of the satin coming through.

CONCERNING HYMNS. Plea for More Variety in the Regula

Why is it there is so little variety in the use of hymns in the churches? asks the Buffalo Commercial. How does it come that, with such a wealth of material to that, with such a wealth of material to draw from the same "old-timers" are sung year in and year out? Is it the fault of year in and year out? Is it the fault of those to whom the selections are intrusted, or is it because there is no popular de-mand for anything but the old hackneyed compositions? Or can it be that a spirit of commonplace has settled upon the churches to which the people have be-come accustomed and do not care to have changed? These are certainly very inter-esting questions.

The hymnals of most of the Christian bodies have been compiled with great care, subjected to numerous revisions and enriched with the very best devotional comever used: With a hybridate estimate to say that fifty are in constant use, and the others are taken up very rarely, if at all. The range of hymnology is very wide, but some of the sweetest hymns never get public utterance. In the Episcopal Prayer-Book and the Psaims there are selections appointed for every day in the year, and the same might be true of the hymnal if it were put to thorough, but of course discretionary, use. Those denominations which have no fixed liturgy generally observe "the times and seasons" in some form, by scriptural selections and otherwise. But how rarely does this extend to the vocal and musical features of the service! The hymnal is a mine of de thought in pure, poetle forms. There are songs of triumph and ascriptions, songs of eternal hope and unfaltering trust, that are allowed to remain practically that are allowed to remain practically obsolete. Its best treasures are not properly appreciated. Take the custom at funerals. Almost invariably the hymns sung are "Nearer My God, to Thee," "Abide With Me," or "Lead, Kindly Light," as if there were no others to be found appropriate to such solemn occasions! The first-named is, probably, the most backnewed of all. It has literalcocasions! The first-named is, probably, the most hackneyed of all. It has literally been sung to death. We note in passing that the brutal murderer who was executed at Jersey City the other day joined in singing this hymn before going to the gallows. Perhaps it has the doubtful distinction of being the "murderers' favorite." With regard to "Leal Kindly Light," it is not, properly speaking, a hymn at all. Its author, the late Cardinal Newman, wrote it at a time when his convictions were most unsettled, as an expression of trust in a Divine guidance. The idea of making it a popular hymn never entered his It a popular hymn never entered his mind. But it has received a beautiful musical setting and has been sung ever since by all bodies of Christians. The systematic neglect of the hymnal as a whole, at the present day constitutes a strange peculiarity in public worship.

Mamma: Don't you feel very sorry for the poor little boy who has lost his foot and has to go on crutches?

Freddie: Sorry! Why, good gracious, he hasn't got but one shoe to black!

THE HAIR CONQUERED. MME. M. YALE'S EXCELSIOR HAIR TONIC ITS MIGHTY RULER.

For the first time in the history of the world gray hair is turned back to its original color without dye. Mme. M. Yale's EXCELSIOR HAIR TONIC has the marvellous power of giving the natural coloring matter circulation, consequently restoring the gray hairs to their original color. Its complete mastery over the human hair has created a sensation all over the world that will never be forgotten. as its discovery has been hailed with encless joy—no more gray nair to worry over, and no more necessity of using injurious hair dyes. Mme. Yale's skill as a chemist has never been equalled by man or woman—she stands alone a queen and conqueror. The whole world hows down to her as a pioneer and scientist. EXCELSIOR HAIR TONIC will stop any case of falling hair in from twenty-four hours to one week. It is a guaranteed cure for any allment of the hair or disease of the scalp.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY PURE, and can be taken internally without injury. It contains nothing greasy or sticky, has a delightful, delicate odory and makes the most perfect hair dressing known for general use. It will keep the hair in curl for days, and creates a luxuriant, glossy growth and preserves its natural color it is not necessary to continue it except for general use, as the hair grows its natural color from the roots the same as when a child. Every bottle is labelled "Mme. M. Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic." Price il per bottle.

SHOT AND KILLED. A QUARREL AT THE POLLS ENDS IN A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

BRISTOL, TENN., November 7.—(Spe-tal.)—At Isis, Scott county. Va., last light Emmet B. Richmond was shot and killed by a man named Laxton. The two had quarrelled at the polls. Not being satisfied Richmond, armed with a pistol, followed Laxton to his home. The latter came to the door with a shotgun and fired the contents into Richmond's breast, who fell from his horse dead. THREE SHOTS. There was a shooting affray at Duffield, Va., in which James Flannery shot Jeft. Bradley, an officer, in the arm.

Bradley and other officers returned the firing, and three shots entered Flannery's body, neither of which will prove fatal. The trouble grew out of Flannery's mistreating a boy. A Very Quiet Election.

SCOTLAND NECK, N. C., November 7.—(Special.)—The election passed off here very quietly yesterday. No disturbance and everything done peaceably. The most quiet election in twenty years. The Democratic ticket is elected by a good matority. majority.

results at the smallest cost. Frice 90 cents per 100 pounds.

Woodlaws Dairy, August 22, 1894.

Mesers Thomas S. Winn & Co.:
Gentlemen,—I have been feeding a herd of forty head of dairy cattle on your Standard Dairy Chop, and find that it produces as much milk, and of as good quality, as feed costing much more. I expect to use a large quantity during the winter mouths. Hoping you much success, because of the interest you take in the dairy people, I am
